

GIFTS BY BENEFICIARY DESIGNATION

A Legacy Made Simple

Would you like to help continue the extraordinary legacy of philanthropic support for BB&N's mission of preparing students for lives of principled engagement in their communities and the world? You can do this by designating Buckingham Browne & Nichols School as a beneficiary of certain assets or accounts you own. You arrange your gift now and at your passing your gift becomes available to Buckingham Browne & Nichols School to use as you have directed.

You can name Buckingham Browne & Nichols School as the sole beneficiary of your assets or as one of several beneficiaries. For example, you can use some of your assets to make a donation and the rest to provide for family members or other loved ones.

Assets to consider designating for BB&N:

- Retirement plan assets
- Life insurance policies
- Commercial annuity contracts
- Bank and investment accounts

Benefits of a gift by beneficiary designation:

- Flexible - assets remain in your control should you need them.
- Easy to arrange - doesn't require a change to your will.
- Revocable - you can change your gift designation at any time.
- Tax-wise - funds passing by beneficiary designation to Buckingham Browne & Nichols School are not subject to income or estate tax. This means 100% of your gift is available for use by BB&N, as you direct.
- Family-friendly - you can name family or other loved ones to benefit from some of the asset, with the BB&N receiving the remaining portion.
- Support your cause - your gift helps ensure BB&N has the resources it needs to fulfill its mission and serve future generations.

“Putting BB&N in my will is a gift from the heart, one that comes from receiving a great education, building lasting relationships, and storing lovely memories. I received a timeless education at Buckingham and see it as my duty to help provide that experience for future students.”

— Cynthia Chace, Buckingham '70

Retirement assets. These include IRAs (regardless of the type of IRA) and most qualified retirement plans, such as 401(k) and 403(b) plans. Request a Beneficiary Designation Form from your plan administrator and designate BB&N as a beneficiary of either a percentage of your plan balance or of a specific dollar amount.

Retirement assets can be taxed at rates as high as 50% to 70% if you leave them to someone other than a surviving spouse. This is because most distributions* to an individual from an IRA, 401(k), 403(b), or other qualified retirement plan are subject to both income tax and estate tax.

In contrast, retirement funds that pass to Buckingham Browne & Nichols School by beneficiary designation are not subject to either of these taxes*. From a tax standpoint, a transfer of assets remaining in an IRA or other retirement account is the very best charitable gift.

Life insurance policies. Simply complete and return to your insurance company a form designating that BB&N receive all or a portion of the death benefit associated with your life insurance policy.

Commercial annuity contracts. A commercial annuity will sometimes have a remaining value at the end of the annuitant's lifetime. You can name BB&N to receive all or part of this amount by designating it as a beneficiary (sole or partial) on the appropriate form from the insurance company.

Bank account. You can instruct your bank to pay to BB&N all or a portion of what remains in your checking or savings account. Your bank can provide you with the appropriate beneficiary designation form.

Investment account. You can instruct your investment company to transfer to BB&N some or all investments held in your account at the time of your passing. Your broker or agent can let you know the process for doing this – it may be as simple as adding “T.O.D. to Buckingham Browne & Nichols School” after your name on the account.
